

One topic Haiku

By

Ann Harrison

Sniffing at my shoes

Front paws clawing at my legs

Nipping when I pet

Pruning rose bushes

Avoiding the sharp prickly thorns

Smell the hint of spring

Wild rides everywhere

The taste of cotton candy

Melting on my tongue

My heart skips a beat

I stand on trembling knees

Unforgettable

Take me to the prom

A stake dinner comes before

We dance smooth and slow

The sun shines brightly chimes ring out there merry tune
In the autumn breeze

In the autumn sun
Roosters run around the yard
Crowing loud and proud

The wind chimes call me
To sit and brainstorm
Out in the late winter breeze

Sitting in the sun
Wind chimes blowing through the breeze
On a warm spring day

Out in the back yard
a wall of masks surrounds me pandemic writing

Sitting on my steps
A humming bird comes to me
Close enough to touch

Driving down the road
Our Yukon makes a hard stop
Nowhere else to go